Some of the best and most experienced au thorities upon Chinese affairs have come the conclusion that it is simply Utopian to expect that any European nation can ever govern the Chinese; and to judge from the experience which we have in Hongkong, upon evidence of the Turnkey, from whom he escaped, which this conclusion is probably in part that neither he nor his assistant absolutely founded, there would certainly seem to be thought it was forty-five, and counting forty good grounds for the opinion. The reason however, for this is obvious. The success or failure of Hongkong is taken by many as a failure of Hongkong is taken by many as a broad indication of how far it is possible for Europeans to govern Chinese at all. No doubt what is done in a small place, where there are very few persons acquainted with the Chinese language, and hardly any who have thereous the result was sented as a special content of the state was sented as a special content of the state was sented as a special content in the failure intention of the

But combined with other matters, it will undoubtedly have its weight, and, at home where it is only upon very broad facts that any judgment can be formed at all on such a point, it is likely to be taken as a very strong index that it is entirely beyond the power of Europeans to govern the Chineso. It is very important, therefore, to notice that so far as this general question is concerned, what goes on in Hongkong forms really no index whatever. No bona fide attempt has ever been made in this place to govern the natives. The idea has been tothrust them into the background, keep all unpleasant details in connection with them but of sight. Such is almost the Regulation of the Chinese which are n force, and to make matters perfect, every conceivable obstacle has been placed in the way of obtaining efficient assistance in the Spars, Timber, and other Dock-yard material way of interpreters. . Under such circumstances, Hongkong forms no index as to the bearing of this question. A thorough and carnest effort to govern the people resident under British protection here must be made before Hongkong can be quoted as an example on this point, and it is not too much to say that that effort has yet to be made.

But it is thought by some, whose opinion is worthy of great respect, that even with all the knowledge of the language and of the Chinese, which could possibly be commanded, it govern Chinese. Such adopts are they at all the arts of evading government, that it is Large, Godowns are on the premises for authorities. In all probability this view is correct, as matters stand at present, but it does not follow that, in time, affairs might not and would not become ameliorated. The great flaw in the system in force here, is that the bankrupt has been sucd in that Court by Superintendent it is in no wise especially adapted to the Chinese. The plainest facts connected with them are repeatedly ignored, and we jump Messrs. Lane, Chawfond & Co., Shanghai. at the conclusion that, if we cannot govern blay3 Chinese precisely as we would govern Europeans, we cannot govern them at all, This, however, is an obvious error. A rock like Hongkong is not a sufficiently large area on which to try the experiment of alter- to that action (Schmidt) did not appear, and ing the habits and thoughts of a peculiarly obstinate and self sufficient people. But if the experiment were tried on a large scale, where the influence of native traditions would be less, and the moral influence of the Government working though large numbers greater, it would in all likelihood be found by no means so difficult a task as it is thought, to from what has been possible in the islet of Hongkong.

His wife and children stood upon the ground, begging blm to come down, but he seited a brick and threw it at them, fortunately without hitting them. A large growd quickly assembled, and the police being informed of it, hastened to the spot. Deputy Commissioner Evans got some plantains, which he threw one by one up to the man, who caught them with one hand and ata them, with the other hand still holding the knife pressed auniust his abdomen'. A sergeant of police took off his shoes, and with one or two constables, crept up the back part Austria has replied to Prince Gortschakoff's of the platform, and came behind the madman. One of the constables incautionaly got in front of the man, seeing which the madmin was as good as his word, and drew the knife across his abdomen, making a long, but fortunately not deep, gash, the knife being very dull ... The sergeant, however, struck hin a heavy blow on the bank of the neck, on which he threw up both hands to bis neak, and was then Press Office, Hongkong.

LIOR scope and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in calmio. Each and every word in fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti, pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast concury of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vicent spaces which have heretofore characterized Chipese publications. The scope of the work is so great, and its utilitarian purposes so domplete, that a re-ference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively Carbon, and is admitted to be fully squal to the ness. In this respect the work will be found best English North Country Coul for ateaming indispensable to all Europeans residing in and all other purposes.
